

SENIOR THESIS FELLOWSHIPS FOR RESEARCH IN EUROPEAN ARCHIVES

*Thinking of writing a senior thesis?
Working on a topic in European history or one that uses European archival sources?
Eager to roll up your sleeves, sharpen your pencils, and dive into the archive?*

Consider applying for the History Department's summer fellowship for history majors researching senior theses in European archives!

Introductory info session (via Zoom):
Friday, February 4, 11:00AM to 12:30PM
Link: <https://columbiauniversity.zoom.us/j/92110640652>

Eligibility

- Current junior history majors in CC, Barnard, and GS
- Working on a topic that can be researched through European archives (including topics relating to other parts of the world whose sources are now housed in Europe, such as topics in imperial history)
- Available to spend 4–6 weeks over the summer conducting archival research, and to attend a workshop in Paris in July
- Submit a completed application, including a proposal for the topic and research to be undertaken, by the deadline of March 25, 2022

Program Details

- Supports 6–8 students for 4–6 weeks of research in European archives
- Includes a $5,000 stipend
- Workshop in Paris in July to troubleshoot and benefit from advice from Columbia faculty and graduate student instructors
- Gives participants a head start on their senior theses

Next Steps

Attend info session on Friday, February 4, 11:00AM to 12:30PM via Zoom:
<https://columbiauniversity.zoom.us/j/92110640652>

- Join our mailing list and stay tuned for information about spring workshops: finding a topic, identifying sources, writing a prospectus
- Submit a completed application by March 25, 2022

Questions?

- Contact Professors Charly Coleman (cc3472@columbia.edu) or Lisa Tiersten (ltierste@barnard.edu).